Association LIETUVOS MEDIENA

The Association was established in May 1993 as a voluntary organisation of the Lithuanian producers and traders of wood products. The Association implements and co-ordinates the tasks delegated to it by its members and represents their economic interests vis-a-vis the authorities of Lithuania and interindustrial organisations. The main aim of the Association is to ensure a full development of the Lithuanian wood industry.

The membership of the Association includes enterprises and organisations of various size and form of ownership related, in one way or another, to the processing of wood, production of wood products, trading in raw wood, wood materials and wood products.

The activities of the Association are administered by a permanent Directorate, which is responsible for the appropriate representation of its members in Lithuania and abroad, the collection and dissemination of information necessary to the business activities of enterprises engaged in the production and commerce of wood products. The Directorate looks after the compliance of the Lithuanian regulations of the production and commerce of wood products and of the attestation of specialists in wood industry with the international standards. It also promotes the membership of the Association in the respective international organisations so that Lithuanian wood industry could receive as much information as possible and Lithuanian specialists could participate in various instructive and commercial events in other countries.

The Association is a member of the European Confederation of Wood Industry (C. E. I.-BOIS) and European Furniture Confederation (UEA) representing the Lithuanian wood industry as a national organisation.

Lithuanian Forestry Sector in 2010

Prof. Dr. Antanas Morkevičius

Introduction

Lithuanian sector of forest economy (cluster) consists of companies engaged in forestry and three main branches of the industry (wood, paper and furniture). Already affected by the economic recession, the industry celebrated its 430th anniversary in 2009. The global economic recession entered this sector late, in the end of 2008, and made its major damage in the first half of 2009, later the drop of production and export volumes settled and some signs of recovery became noticeable. Production and incomes of companies in 2009, if compared with the previous years, decreased by one fifth, the achievements of the three previous years were lost. Share of the timber production in the national industry dropped from 11.3% down to 10% in the last two years. Some companies perished, ceased their activities, others “shrunk”, dismissed a lot of employees, lost their products sale markets. Forestry companies also experienced interruptions in their activities because of decreased demand for round timber, sudden drop in its prices. The recession brought not only confusion and losses but also checked vitality of the great majority of the companies, their ability to make quick adjustments to the new and rapidly changing extremely unfavourable conditions for further business development. Business results of the industry in 2009 show that the least damage caused by the recession was experienced by the paper industry, in the second half of 2009 the production and export of nearly all sorts of timber products resumed their growth in the second half of 2009.

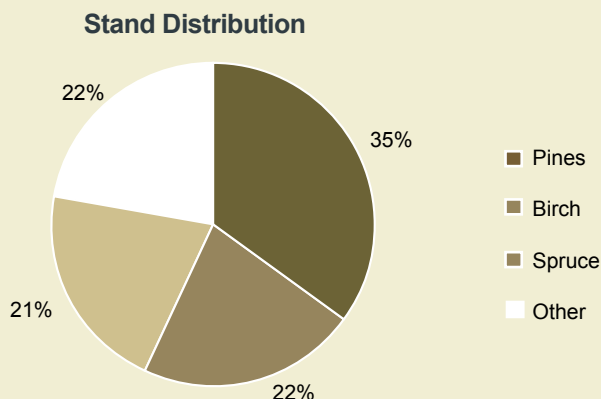

1. Forests and raw wood market

Lithuanian forestry sector has its own raw resources and sufficiently balanced round wood market, therefore it is capable of further development of wood industry and its products export. Forest areas and their resources are further growing (Table 1).

Table 1. Lithuanian Forests

Structural dynamics of forest stands is also good so far: the share of mature timber and coniferous (pine and fir) forest stands is growing. Today, coniferous forest stands occupy 56% of the total woodland. The size of felling still allows stock accumulation, planning their further increasing use. In 2009, the state owned 1065 thousand ha or 49% of the forests. The other part consists of private forests and woodlands intended for privatisation (restitution). Rather protracted process of privatisation (restitution to former owners) results in insufficient use of the forest reserve intended for this purpose (13% of the total woodland). Another unfavourable factor is 240 thousand owners of private forests, which results in too small size of one estate. In 2009, very significant part (36%) of private forests consisted of under 1 ha estates, 33.2% - 1-3 ha, 13.6% - 3-5, and estates of over 5 ha area accounted for as little as 17.2%. At the same time, some process of private estate concentration has already started.

Round wood supply has been very close to its demand for a number of years: it was sufficiently balanced (Table 3). Besides, a trend of decreasing demand for raw wood was observed. No thorough information about the supply and use of raw wood in 2009 is available yet. To the best knowledge available, in 2009 the state forest enterprises produced and sold the same amount of round wood as in previous years, i.e. 3.2 million m³ (2007 – 3.16 million m³, 2008 – 3.15 million m³) and the volume of its products produced and sold by private forest sector has underwent very minor decrease.

In 2009, 2 times less round wood was exported than in 2008, and one quarter less round wood was imported. Its export to Poland and Sweden has significantly decreased. It allows making a firm statement that in 2009 the supply of raw materials on the domestic market was more than just sufficient, it was evidently surplus supply, which is confirmed also by the former dynamics of round wood prices (Table 4). Prices dropped down because of sudden decrease in the demand, declining production and export of sawn goods and its products. Sudden and significant decrease of round wood prices obviously resulted in substantial losses incurred by the companies engaged in forestry business. In the second half of the year, growing demand for raw wood, its rising prices could be observed again.

Use of wood for fuel is increasing (Table 5). Industrial boiler houses supplying heating increased the use of wood in heat production in 1992-1993. In the beginning, this activity was rather slow, but in 2009 as many as 360 boiler houses using biofuel were operating in Lithuania, increasing volumes of heat are produced from wood and other biological materials. Biomass share in the boiler houses supplying central heating accounts for 18% of the total fuel used and in the nearest future, it should rise up to 50% because of growing gas prices. First of all, use of forest felling waste, followed by other wood should increase. Expected growing demand for wood fuel can activate the entire round wood market and result in rising prices in the nearest future.

2. Production of Wood Products

In early 2010, 2815 companies of various sizes were engaged in manufacturing of wood products. The number of companies has slightly decreased recently, their specialisations have undergone changes. It was noticed that quite a lot of companies changed their profile and started manufacturing furniture and its components (Table 5).

Volumes of wood production decreased by 20% in the last two years because of the direct impact of the recession, very little in 2008 (less than by 1%) and much more in 2009 - 19.7%. It can be already stated (Table 7) that the economic recession had less impact on paper industry, while the share of wood production in the whole production industry decreased from 10.7% down to 10% in 2009.

Lithuanian industry of wood products having experienced successful growth for many years in two recent years lost the production increase of the two previous years (Picture 1), two comparatively large furniture manufacturers went bankrupt: newly built Narbutas ir Ko in Ukmergė and Dilikas in Klaipėda, over ten smaller companies. It is already evident that 2009 was not only the year of immense losses but also the year of production recovery (Picture 2). In the second half of the year production recovery trend was obvious. Only trend not sudden recovery of all types of products. The economic recession affected the distribution of wood production sale markets. In 2009, the share of products sold on the local market significantly decreased. It can also be stated that the economic recession had stronger effect on small businesses. This statement is confirmed by the dynamics of the share of companies products (Table 8). In 2009, it increased from 27.3% up to 32.4%. Products of the whole wood industry estimated at the current year's prices decreased by 23% in 2009, while of twelve largest companies - only by 8.3%. Production concentration is still ongoing.

Yearly Wood Production, million EUR

Four out of eleven largest companies (Visagino linija, Klaipėdos mediena, Vilniaus baldai, and Sakuona) evaded the recession, continued increasing their production, while the worst effect of the recession was incurred by Klaipėdos kartonas. The beginning of the year was very unsuccessful for the latter company, because of the shortage of raw materials (waste paper), the company was forced to reduce its production volumes, to dismiss one third of this staff, to organise waste paper import from Russia and Belarus. By the end of the year Klaipėdos kartonas resumed its regular operation but was not able to compensate its lagging in the past. Production volumes of six manufacturing companies controlled by SBA Group (Visagino linija, Klaipėdos baldai, Šilutės baldai, Kauno baldai, Germanika, and Novo Mebel) decreased by only 4.1% and nearly all production (99%) was sold to IKEA Corporation in 2009. The companies of this Group manufacture veneered cabinet furniture, tables and employ only half of their resources available into the production. This year, more orders from the Swedish IKEA are expected which would make the Group the biggest furniture supplier for this corporation in Europe.

3. Foreign Trade

Export of Lithuanian wood products was increasing for a number of years and reached EUR 1.4 billion in 2007. Import experienced similar growth and reached EUR 900 million in the same year. The share of wood products in the whole export in 2007 accounted for 11.9%, in 2009 it dropped down to 10.3%. Foreign trade balance of wood products, differently from majority of other commodities, has always been positive. In the last two years, the total turnover of foreign trade in timber significantly decreased: export by 16.3%, import by as many as 31.3%. But in the second half of 2009, the export recovered and demonstrated a good growth trend again (Picture 4). The export recovery overtook production recovery speed. It shows that the wood producing industry has not lost its export markets yet. At the same time favourable changes in the export commodity structure should also be mentioned. In the last three years, the share of furniture in the wood products export increased from 47% up to 54%. The other same significant and favourable indicator is quite good export geography. In 2009, furniture manufactured in Lithuania was exported to forty countries in the world which at that time were either hardly affected by the economic recession or already recovered from it, as well as to the countries manufacturing big volumes of those products (Germany, Sweden, Italy, Poland, France, etc.). It shows competitiveness of Lithuanian furniture. Great majority of furniture is now manufactured and exported by well-equipped large companies hardly affected by the economic recession (Table 10). Therefore, furniture will probably be the backbone of the recovery and further development of the entire wood industry.

Paper and paper products have occupied the leading position among the wood import products for a number of years by now. The share of these products continues growing (2007 – 36.6%, 2008 – 40.3%, 2009 – 48.4%). The share of the import of furniture, round and sawn wood is decreasing accordingly. That also represents favourable changes.

Kaunas College was established in 2000. It originated from Kaunas College of Technology. While implementing the reform of the Lithuanian education system, there were developed two programs of higher non-university studies in the Industrial Technologies' and Design Department - the production of furniture and wood products and the construction and production of interior articles. The duration of the studies is 3 years. The college qualifies the technologists and designers for woodworking industry. There is established a re-qualifying centre for the woodworking industry specialists under the Industrial Technologies' and Design Department. The lectures of the Department organize courses and consult about the sawmilling technologies and sawnwood sorting.

The Department of Wood Technology was established in 1941. Department has extensive experience in S&T activities for forest and woodworking industry and trains bachelors and masters for wood industry:

Qualifying degree	Study program	Term of study
Bachelor of Science (B.Sc.) in Industrial Engineering (under-graduate)	Furniture and Wood Products Engineering and Design Specializations: - Furniture Design and Technology - Wood Products Design and Technology	4 years
Master of Science (M.Sc.) in Industrial Engineering (graduate)	Wood Engineering	2 years

FIELDS OF ACTIVITY

1. RESEARCH GROUP OF MODIFICATION AND PROCESSING OF WOOD RAW MATERIAL INTO INNOVATIVE WOOD PRODUCTS

Head: Assoc. Prof. Dr. Antanas BALTRUŠAITIS

Phone: +370 37 300 230

Research Areas:

- Physical and mechanical behavior of wood and wood products;
- Efficient wood cutting processes;
- Advanced technologies for primary wood processing;
- CAD and performance simulation of furniture and timber structures;
- Eco-and material efficient cutting surface formation processes;
- Wood-based materials and engineered wood products.

Current Research Projects:

- Investigation and tests of wood heat treatment (HT) in the chamber type drying kilns (Standard ISPM 15);
- Participation in European COST Actions: E55 "Modeling of the Performance of Timber Structures" and FP0802 "Experimental and Computational Micro-Characterisation Techniques in Wood Mechanics".

2. RESEARCH GROUP OF FUNCTIONAL DIAGNOSTICS OF WOOD MATERIALS AND TECHNOLOGICAL PROCESSES

Head: Prof. Dr. Habil. Jonas VOBOLIS

Phone: +370 37 300231

Research in dynamic investigation of the parameters of wood products and wood processing instruments:

- Displacement of the viscous-elastic properties within solid wood timber;
- Evaluation of the internal structure of wood based panels
- Relations between internal structure and geometrical form of the circular saws
- Viscous-elastic properties of soft furnishings

3. STANDARTIZATION

Standardization Technical Committee LST TC17 „Mediena“ („Wood“) was established in 1993. The areas of standardization of TC 17 „Mediena“ are: forestry, round and sawn timber, structural timber, timber structures, wood-based panels, durability of wood and wood-based materials. Publications: information biuletin „Forest. Timber. Standardization. Technologies.“

Vice – Chairman of TC 17 „Mediena“: Dr. Valdas NORVYDAS. Phone: +370 37 300 202;

E-mail: Valdas.Norvydas@ktu.lt

4. ACCREDITED RESEARCH AND TESTING LABORATORY OF WOOD MATERIALS AND PRODUCTS

(accredited until 03-12-2014 according LST EN ISO/IEC 17025:2005).

Head Assoc. Prof. Dr. V. PRANCKEVIČIENĖ. Phone: +370 37 300234, +370 37 353863.

E-mail: vilija.prankeviciene@ktu.lt

Testing areas:

- timber structures;
- glued laminated timber products;
- wood flooring;
- wood-based panels;
- polymeric dispersions and adhesives.
